RATING	5.0 / 5.0 26 Google reviews

■ WHERE YOU STAND TODAY

TX Smoke has already won the part most shops never get right. Four stores across DFW, 217 Google reviews between them, and a top-three map pack placement in five of the six searches we ran. The website is the piece that hasn't kept up. It is still running an unconfigured store template, with an expired November event in the hero, placeholder tiles that have no product photos, leftover demo pages from the theme, and not one page for any of your four stores. All of it is fixable, and most of it is fixable quickly, because the hard part is behind you.

■ TOP SHELF SCORECARD

Our assessment of each part of your online presence, graded A to F and backed by the specific findings below.

DIMENSION	GRADE	ASSESSMENT
Google Profile  78	B	Four claimed listings with real hours, photos, and popular times. Three are correctly filed as Cigar shop. Highland Village is filed as Tobacco shop, and none of the four carries a description, a products list, or a single post.

Reviews / Reputation  88	A ⁻	217 reviews across the four stores, including a clean 5.0 from 26 at Highland Village. Volume is the one weak spot. The nearest lounge competitor sits at 788 reviews.
Website quality  24	F	No H1 anywhere on the homepage, no meta description, and no schema. Two theme demo pages are still live and still in the sitemap, and an expired event is still in the hero. The template was never finished.
Local / niche SEO  52	C ⁻	The Google listings are carrying local search on their own. The website is absent from the top results in four of six store-city searches, and no store has a page of its own.
Lead conversion  34	D	The contact page returns a 404 and there is no form anywhere on the site. Hours never appear on the page. Get directions sends every visitor to the Weatherford address no matter which store they were looking for.
OVERALL  55 C ⁻

02 Google Business Profile Audit

Your Google Business Profiles are doing the heavy lifting right now. Someone in Highland Village, Fort Worth, or University Park who searches for a cigar shop usually sees one of your listings first. That position is worth protecting. Below is where those listings are strong and where they are leaving something on the table.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Business info & hours	A ⁻	 90	Name, address, phone, and hours are accurate on all four listings, and they match what the website footer says. Good foundation to build on.
Categories	C ⁺	 66	Fort Worth, Weatherford, and University Park are correctly set to Cigar shop. Highland Village is set to Tobacco shop, which is the weaker term for the searches your reviews say you actually win.
Business description	F	 20	None of the four listings has a description. That is free space to name the lounge, the humidor, and the cities you serve, and right now it sits empty.
Products & services	F	 22	The products section is empty on every listing, even though you run a members' lounge your reviewers write about by name. Google will show products in the listing if you give it any.
Photos & media	B ⁻	 80	Owner photos are present across the listings, which is more than most shops manage. Worth keeping on a regular cadence.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Google Posts	F	 18	No posts on any of the four listings. Your competitors post events and new arrivals. Posts are one of the few free levers that actually move a listing.
Reviews & responses	A ⁻	 88	217 reviews across the four stores. Reviewers name Derek and Scott and describe the lounge in detail. Nothing else you own comes close to this.
Map pack visibility	A ⁻	 88	#1 for cigar shop Highland Village TX, #1 on Camp Bowie in Fort Worth, #1 in University Park, #2 in Weatherford, #2 for cigar lounge Flower Mound. Lewisville is the one city where you do not appear.

Detailed findings

Your four listings are running as four separate businesses

Google shows Highland Village as Tx Smoke, Weatherford as Tobacco Lane On the Square, Fort Worth as TX Smoke Cigars, and University Park as Tobacco Gallery. Each one has its own reviews and its own ranking, and each is doing fine on its own terms. What none of them has is a website page to send people to, so all four point at the same homepage, which says nothing about any specific store. The reviews, ratings, and rankings you built at four addresses all funnel into one page that cannot tell a visitor which store they just found.

Empty descriptions and empty product lists on a 5.0 listing

A listing with 26 reviews at a perfect 5.0 and no description reads like nobody is minding it. The description is the one place you get to say, in your own words, that this is a lounge with a walk-in humidor and a members' room in the back. Your reviewers already say that for you. Filling in the description and the products list on all four listings is an afternoon of work, and it costs nothing.

The category on Highland Village is the wrong one

Highland Village is filed under Tobacco shop while the competitor sitting directly below you in that same map pack is filed under Cigar shop. You rank first anyway, which tells you the reviews are carrying it. Your other three stores are already set to Cigar shop, so the fix is proven and takes about two minutes.

Quick wins for your profile

- Change the Highland Village primary category from Tobacco shop to Cigar shop
- Write a description for all four listings naming the lounge, humidor, and city
- Fill in the products section on each listing with featured brands
- Start posting on each listing for new arrivals and lounge events
- Build a simple ask-for-a-review habit at checkout to close the volume gap

How you compare locally The strongest cigar lounges around you run anywhere from 201 to 788 reviews, post to their profiles regularly, and keep their product lists filled in. On rating you already match or beat all of them. On volume, Cigars on 35 in Lewisville has 788 against your combined 217, and it is the one shop consistently ranking above you in the Flower Mound and Lewisville searches. Closing that gap is mostly a matter of asking, since the people who do review you rate you five stars.

03 Website & SEO Audit

■ TECHNICAL & FOUNDATIONS

This is the plumbing Google needs before it can understand the site at all. Most of it is missing, and some of what is there works against you.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Page title	F	 20	The homepage title reads TX Smoke, with a double space, no city, and no mention of cigars or a lounge.
Meta descriptions	F	 15	The homepage has no meta description, so Google writes your search snippet for you.
Heading structure	F	 18	The homepage has zero H1 tags. There are four H2s sitting under no top-level heading.
Structured data (schema)	F	 15	No JSON-LD or schema of any kind. Nothing tells Google your addresses, your hours, or that you have four locations.
Sitemap & indexing	D	 38	The sitemap has 28 URLs. Twenty are collections filed under a products path, and two are the theme's demo pages, which are indexable and carry noindex.
Broken pages	F	 20	Your contact page returns a 404. So do /about, /locations, and every store-specific path we tested.
Mobile & HTTPS	B	 80	Valid SSL, a proper viewport tag, and a working mobile menu. The template's responsive behaviour is intact.

Detailed findings

The demo pages are the clearest sign the site was never finished

Two pages of the theme's sample content, demopage01 and demopage02, are live, publicly reachable, and listed in your sitemap with nothing telling Google to ignore them. They are the sort of thing that gets left behind when a store is set up and then never revisited. The homepage still carries the theme's own marketing copy about a selection of seasonal fashion trends, complete with a stock photo of a fashion model and a row of trust badges promising worldwide shipping, free returns, and sustainable fabrics.

A missing H1 and a missing description are the two cheapest fixes in this report

Google reads the H1 and the title to work out what a page is about, then shows the meta description to searchers deciding whether to click. Your homepage has no H1, a title with a stray double space, and no description at all. None of that requires a rebuild. It requires someone to write three lines of text and put them in the right fields.

No schema means Google is guessing about four addresses

With no LocalBusiness or Organization markup, nothing on the site tells Google that txsmokes.com belongs to four physical stores at four addresses with four phone numbers. That is a large part of why third-party directories outrank you for your own store names.

Quick wins - technical

- Delete or noindex demopage01 and demopage02 and remove them from the sitemap
- Write a real homepage title with the brand and the category
- Add an H1 and a meta description to the homepage
- Fix or rebuild the contact page so it stops returning a 404
- Add LocalBusiness schema for each of the four stores

■ ON-PAGE & CONTENT

Google ranks pages, and there is almost nothing here to rank. The homepage carries the entire site, and much of what sits on it belongs to somebody else's store.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Expired & leftover content	F	 15	The hero still promotes an AVO Savor and Swing golf event dated Friday, November 14th, long past. It also promotes the Weatherford store on a site a Highland Village customer is reading.
Category & product imagery	F	 22	The category tiles are coloured gradient placeholders with no photographs. One of them is labelled Fashion.
Content depth	F	 20	Four real product pages, and no written content anywhere about the lounge, the humidior, the brands you carry, or the stores themselves.
Location content	F	 10	Zero pages for four stores. Every address, phone number, and set of hours is buried in one unformatted block of footer text.
Image SEO	D	 40	Three images on the homepage, two of them with no alt text at all.
Navigation	D+	 45	The menu offers Cigars, Tobacco, Pipes, and Accessories. There is no About, no Contact, no Locations, and no Lounge.

Detailed findings

The homepage is advertising an event that ended and a store in another county

A customer finds the Highland Village listing, taps through, and reads a hero promoting a golf event on a Friday in November at the Weatherford store. In about four seconds they have learned two wrong things: that you might be closed or out of date, and that you are not in their town. The typo in that headline, Mark you calendar, is small on its own, but it lands on the first line a new customer reads.

The lounge is invisible on your own website

Your reviewers write about the lounge more than anything else. They mention the cigar selection, the members' room in the back, the atmosphere, and they name Derek and Scott. None of that appears anywhere on the site. The most compelling thing about the business has been documented in public, for free, by your own customers, and the website does not repeat one word of it.

Placeholder tiles read as an unfinished store

Every category tile on the homepage is a coloured gradient rather than a photograph, and one is labelled Fashion. To a first-time visitor comparing you against a competitor with real photos, those tiles suggest the store is either brand new or abandoned. Neither is accurate, and it is not what you want somebody thinking while they decide where to drive.

Quick wins - content

- Pull the expired event out of the hero and replace it with the Highland Village lounge
- Photograph the humidor and the lounge and use those for the category tiles
- Remove the Fashion tile and the leftover fashion copy and badges
- Add About, Locations, and Contact to the main navigation
- Write alt text for every image on the homepage

■ LOCAL SEO & RANKINGS

This is the clearest picture in the report. Your Google listings rank well and your website does not. Every rank below was checked by hand on 2 August 2026.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Map pack presence	A ⁻	88	Top three in Highland Village, Flower Mound, Fort Worth, Weatherford, and University Park. Absent only in Lewisville.
Organic rankings	F	20	txsmokes.com is absent from the top results in four of the six searches we ran and sits at #7 in the other two.
Location pages	F	8	None. Four stores and no pages for any of them.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Name consistency (NAP)	D	 38	The Weatherford store is Tobacco Lane On the Square on Google and TOBACCO LANE by TX SMOKE on your site. Fort Worth is TX Smoke Cigars on Google and TX SMOKE-FORT WORTH on your site.
Directory control	D	 35	Third-party sites rank for your store names because you have no pages of your own for them to compete with.
Competitor gap	C	 60	You match or beat every local competitor on rating. You trail the strongest of them badly on review volume and on having any website content at all.

Checked by hand, 2 August 2026 - where you actually rank

SEARCH	YOUR GOOGLE LISTING	TXSMOKES.COM	WHAT RANKS INSTEAD
cigar shop Highland Village TX	#1 in map pack	#7	Your own Facebook page, Yelp twice, a competitor
cigar shop Camp Bowie Fort Worth TX	#1 in map pack	Absent	Big Dave's, then Yelp's page about your store
cigar shop University Park Dallas TX	#1 in map pack	Absent	cigarworld.com and cigarscore.com pages about your store
cigar shop Weatherford TX	#2 in map pack	#7	Cattleman Cigar, then cigarworld.com's page about your store
cigar lounge Flower Mound TX	#2 in map pack	Absent	Cigars on 35, then cigarworld.com's page about your store
cigar shop Lewisville TX	Not in map pack	Absent	Cigars on 35, Up In Smoke, Ashes Smoke Shop

Detailed findings

Directories are ranking for your store names, and you are not. Search University Park and the second result is cigarworld.com's page about Tobacco Gallery, with cigarscore.com's page about the same store right behind it. Search Weatherford and cigarworld.com's page about Tobacco Lane sits at #5 while your own site is at #7. Search Fort Worth and Yelp's page about TX Smoke Fort Worth outranks you. Those directories have one thing you do not, which is a page dedicated to that specific store. That is the whole reason they win, and it is the most fixable thing in this report.

Four stores with no pages cannot rank in four cities

You have four addresses and one homepage. Google has no page to rank for Fort Worth, none for University Park, and none for Weatherford, because those pages do not exist. Your listings are papering over the problem, which is why the map pack looks so good while the organic results look the way they do. A real page for each store, carrying that store's name, address, hours, phone number, staff, and photos, is what turns four strong listings into four ranking cities.

Lewisville is the one city where nothing is working

Highland Village sits about ten minutes from Lewisville, and Lewisville is where Cigars on 35 has built 788 reviews. In the Lewisville search you appear in neither the map pack nor the organic results. This one will take longer to solve than the others, but it is worth knowing that the nearest large market currently has no idea you exist.

Quick wins - local

- Build a page for each of the four stores with its real name, address, hours, and phone
- Make the site name for each store match its Google listing exactly
- Point each Google listing at its own store page instead of the homepage
- Claim and correct your entries on cigarworld and the other directories already ranking
- Add a locations page that lists all four and links to each

■ CONVERSION & LEAD CAPTURE

Ranking only counts if the visitor can then do something. On your site, most of the obvious next steps are either missing or broken.

ELEMENT	GRADE	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Contact page	F	 10	It returns a 404. There is no working contact page on the site.
Contact form	F	 12	There is no form anywhere. The only contact route is a customerservice@ address in the footer.
Hours on the page	F	 20	Hours appear nowhere except inside the unformatted footer text block.
Directions	F	 15	The Get directions link resolves to the Weatherford address for every visitor, including the ones who came from the Highland Village listing.
Click-to-call	D	 40	Phone numbers appear as plain text in the footer rather than as tappable buttons.
Trust signals	D	 38	217 five-star-leaning reviews, and not one of them is quoted anywhere on the site.

Detailed findings

A 404 on the contact page is the most expensive broken link you have Somebody who wants to reach you clicks Contact, lands on an error page, and usually does not try again. They go back to Google, where three competitors are waiting. Small fix, real cost for every day it stays broken.

Get directions sending everyone to Weatherford is worse than having no button

A customer in Highland Village who taps for directions is sent to a store an hour and a half away in Parker County. A customer in Fort Worth is sent to the same place. The button does more than fail to help. It routes people to the wrong store, and they have no way of knowing until they are already driving.

Your best sales material is sitting on Google unused

You have 217 reviews, several of them detailed and specific about the lounge and the staff. Pulling a handful of those onto the homepage and each store page, with the reviewer's name attached, costs nothing and is more persuasive than anything we could write from scratch.

Quick wins - conversion

- Build a working contact page with a short form
- Put each store's hours and a tappable phone number on its own page
- Fix Get directions so each store links to its own address
- Quote real Google reviews on the homepage and each store page
- Add a lounge page, since that is what people are actually coming for

04 Priority Fixes & Next Steps

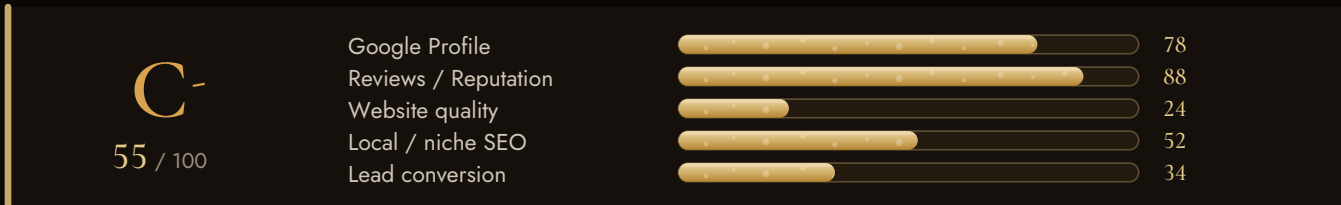

Ordered by impact. We start at the top: the fastest ways to turn your existing traffic into more booked calls.

- 1 Build a page for each of your four stores. This is the fix that changes the most. Four addresses currently share one homepage, which is why directories rank for your store names and you do not. Each page needs that store's real name, address, hours, phone number, and photos.
- 2 Fix the contact page and the directions link. The contact page returns a 404, and Get directions sends every visitor to Weatherford regardless of which store they came from. Both are small jobs, and both are costing you walk-ins today.
- 3 Clear the template leftovers off the homepage. The expired November event, the fashion copy, the Fashion tile, the sustainable fabrics badge, and the two live demo pages all tell a first-time visitor that nobody is looking after the store. That is not the case, and all of it is quick to remove.

4 Finish the four Google listings. Add a description and a products list to each, switch Highland Village from Tobacco shop to Cigar shop, and start posting. It costs nothing, it goes fast, and your listings are already the strongest thing you have.

5 Put the lounge on the website. Your reviewers write about the lounge, the humidor, the members' room, and the staff by name. None of it appears on your site. Your customers have already written the copy for you.

■ PREPARED FOR

TX Smoke

Your Growth Plan & Solutions · Cigar lounge & tobacconist

The companion to your audit: the real problems we found, what they're quietly costing you, and exactly how Top Shelf fixes each one.

TX Smoke has done the hard part. Four DFW stores, a 5.0-star Google rating in Highland Village, and the top spot in the map pack in three of the six searches we ran. The website has not kept pace. It is still an unconfigured template carrying an expired promotion, placeholder tiles, and no pages at all for four stores that run under three different names. That is the gap between what TX Smoke has built and what a customer sees the first time they look you up.

01 What your audit turned up

Here's what we found, what it's quietly costing you, and how Top Shelf would fix it. Each one is grounded in your real audit.

1 The homepage still promotes a golf event from last November, and two of the theme's demo pages are live and indexed.

COSTING YOU Someone who found you at #1 in the map pack taps through and lands on a page that does not match the five-star reputation that got them there. The expired hero also promotes the Weatherford store to a customer reading in Highland Village.

OUR FIX We pull the expired event, delete the demo pages and drop them from the sitemap, clear out the leftover fashion copy and badges, then rebuild the homepage around the lounge and the humidor.

THE RESULT The site finally lines up with what 217 reviews have been saying about you for years.

2 Four stores, three brand names, and not one location page. Every address sits in an unformatted footer block, and Get directions sends everyone to Weatherford.

COSTING YOU A customer in Fort Worth or University Park either drives to the wrong store or gives up and picks a competitor. Meanwhile cigarworld.com and Yelp rank for your own store names, because they have the store pages you do not.

OUR FIX A real page for each of the four stores, carrying that store's Google name, address, hours, phone, staff, and photos. A locations page ties them together, and each Google listing points at its own page.

THE RESULT Every store is findable in its own city, and customers walk into the right door.

3 You are #1 in the map pack in Highland Village but #7 organically, and that listing is still filed under Tobacco shop while your other three are filed under Cigar shop.

COSTING YOU Your reviews are carrying rankings your website should be earning. The organic traffic you do get lands on Yelp, Facebook, and directory pages you neither control nor can change.

OUR FIX Switch Highland Village to Cigar shop, write a description and fill in the products list on all four listings, start a posting rhythm, and build the on-site content those searches actually want.

THE RESULT You own your search results instead of borrowing them from directories.

Does this sound familiar?

Those are the things we could spot from the outside. But you're the one running this every day, so a few of these probably hit closer to home.

02 Other things we hear from owners like you

Common headaches for businesses like yours, and what it looks like once they're off your plate.

There is no way to contact you from the website. The contact page returns a 404, there is no form anywhere, and hours never appear on the page.

THE DRAG Anyone who wants to check whether you are open, ask if you carry a brand, or book the lounge has to go back to Google and hope. Some of them do not come back.

OUR FIX A working contact page with a short form, hours on every store page, and tappable phone numbers instead of plain text.

THE RESULT People who want to reach you can, on the first try, from their phone.

The Google listings that carry your business are half-finished. No description, no posts, and no products, on a profile sitting at 5.0 from 26 reviews.

THE DRAG Google shows less of you than it is willing to, and a listing with nothing filled in reads like nobody is minding the store.

OUR FIX We write the descriptions, load the product lists with the brands you actually carry, and set up a posting cadence for new arrivals and lounge events across all four listings.

THE RESULT The profiles that already win the map pack start doing the selling too.

There is no structured data anywhere on the site, no meta description, and the homepage title has a stray double space in it.

THE DRAG Google has nothing telling it you are four physical stores at four addresses, so it writes your search snippet for you and guesses at the rest.

OUR FIX LocalBusiness schema for each store, a real title and description, and an H1 on a homepage that currently has none.

THE RESULT Search engines know what you are, where you are, and what to show.

The four stores do not agree on their own names. Weatherford is Tobacco Lane On the Square on Google and Tobacco Lane by TX Smoke on the site. Fort Worth is TX Smoke Cigars on Google and TX Smoke-Fort Worth on the site.

THE DRAG Inconsistent names and addresses across Google, your site, and the directories dilute every ranking signal each store has earned separately.

OUR FIX Pick the right name for each location, make it identical everywhere, and clean up the directory entries already ranking above you.

THE RESULT Four listings pull in the same direction instead of competing with each other.

■ THE BIGGER PICTURE

This is just the tip of the iceberg.

What you've seen here is only your website and Google presence, one slice of your business. The bigger wins are in the parts we can't see from the outside. Let's grab 20 minutes and sit down together to map the rest of the day-to-day headaches Top Shelf can take off your plate. Your audit is yours to keep, and you own everything we build.

Let's set up your sit-down.
